IT TAKES A VILLAGE: GOGREEN NYC RELEASES CALL FOR PROPOSALS
Submission Deadline for Case Studies & Solutions Labs is March 15, 2013

Jan. 30, 2013 (NEW YORK CITY) — Whether you're raising children or building a more sustainable economy, former New York Senator Hillary Rodham Clinton was right: It takes a village. With this mind, the GoGreen Conference officially announces a Call For Proposals for its 2013 event, kicking off a second year serving the New York City metropolitan business community with sustainability solutions to address environmental, economic and social challenges in the region. The deadline for submissions is Friday, March 15, 2013.

“New York is home to many of the world’s great entrepreneurs, problem solvers and policy makers,” said Ericka Dickey-Nelson, Co-Founder and CEO of the GoGreen Conference. “We believe the best way GoGreen can facilitate the development of a more sustainable future in the region is to open our program up to the innovative thinkers on the front lines who are aggressively moving us forward each and every day. With this call, we welcome case studies and topics from change makers across all sectors and industries in the Tri-State Area.”

Proposals are being sought in the following areas of topical importance:

- Triple Bottom Line & Social Enterprise
- Transportation Solutions
- Innovative Financing
- Big Data Management
- Supply Chain Mapping
- Health & Sustainability
- Energy & Climate Change
- Waste Recovery & Sustainable Consumption

Organizers urge a special emphasis on proposals that provide diverse perspectives and exceptional learning value in sustainability strategies, solutions and/or tools for an audience of organizational leaders, sustainability practitioners and entrepreneurs. Please contact Stephanie Stettler at proposals@gogreenconference.net with questions regarding submissions.
